VIENNA NOW

GREAT STRIKEFollowed Mad Rioting of Socialists and
Workers Friday

BULLETIN.

Vienna, Austria, July 16.—(AP)—An official communique issued by the office of Chancellor Seipel today said that yesterday's rebellion has been suppressed. The communique says 12 persons were killed and 119 injured.

London, Eng., July 16.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports regarding the Viennese situation reaching Reuters state that practically all the workers of the Austrian capital have obeyed a general strike order which is said to have been issued by the socialist party and executives of the Austrian trades union.

The reports say that the socialists sent a deputation to Chancellor Seipel, demanding his resignation.

CABINET IN SESSION

Vienna, Austria, July 16.—(Via Bratislava, Czechoslovakia)—(AP)—The Austrian council of ministers has declared itself in permanent session to deal with the situation arising out of yesterday's riots. It is announced that the government has taken all possible measures to prevent further trouble.

STRIKE IS AIRTIGHT

Berlin, Germany, July 16.—(AP)—Attempts to get in touch with Austrian central points by telephone failed today, indicating that the general strike in Austria is airtight.

SITUATION IMPROVING

Paris, July 16.—(AP)—A single dispatch from riot-torn Vienna today declares the situation improving. News from points near the frontier confirms the seriousness of yesterday's rioting. These dispatches estimate the dead at 12 and the injured at 119. The reports agree that the uprising grew to alarming proportions because workmen from the suburbs surprised the police and spread the agitation through the city.

Kept Firemen Away

The authorities seem to have realized the danger of the movement only when rioters forced their way into the palace of justice and seized and set fire to legal files. For some time the mob kept firemen from approaching the building. The mob, reinforced rapidly, then attacked the police post near the city hall and destroyed furniture and documents.

It was then the police finally decided energetic measures were necessary. Detachments of police were greeted with stones.

Police Used Arms

The bloodshed began, the police using arms to protect themselves. Firemen were then able to confine the conflagration to the buildings of the palace of justice.

The police finally succeeded in driving the rioters away from the palace of justice. Gendarmes then began the work of clearing other parts of the city.

Latest reports say rail communications with Vienna is cut.

Palace Is Ruined

The palace of justice was ruined by fire and there are reports that the ministry of ports also was set on fire and the parliament house, the opera house, and, perhaps, other buildings damaged. All communication was cut off at 7 o'clock last night when telegraph and telephone operators quit in response to a general strike order.

The ostensible cause of the outbreak was the acquittal Thursday night of three Austrian monarchists charged with shooting to death a man and a boy.

It is known, however, that the socialists were bitterly disappointed at not having succeeded as well as expected in the recent general election.

In view of the unchanged situation and the lack of progress, all delegates have abandoned the plan of leaving Geneva for over Sunday.

GOV. SMALL ISSUES
STATEMENT ON HIS
PAYMENT TO STATE$650,000 Not "Paid Back" Because It Never Was in Treasury

Gov. Len Small, in presenting his check for $650,000 to the State Treasurer Friday, thus ending the long legal battle over his responsibility for unpaid interest on state funds while he was state treasurer, issued the following statement:

"I have this day paid into the state treasury $650,000 in accordance with the decree of the Circuit Court of Sangamon County.

"In words of the stipulation on which the decree is based this money is 'solely for interest received by others,' inasmuch as 'evidence fails to establish that the defendant, Len Small, received any sum whatsoever as interest on public funds during his term of office as state treasurer, except such sums as he has already accounted for and paid into the state treasury.'

"Heretofore, I have accounted for and paid into the treasury the sum of $450,000, that being the total of all interest ever received by me from banks in which state funds were deposited and twice the amount any other state treasurer had ever accounted for.

"The total paid by me into the treasury is $1,100,000. This is at the rate of about 5 per cent on all money available for deposit during my term of office; or 3 per cent in excess of the rate usually received on public funds.

"I have paid into the treasury more interest than all state treasurers combined during the 99-year period from the time Illinois became a state. I have paid into the state as much interest as some of my successors had available for deposit.

"The reason for this excess in comparison to the far smaller sums paid by other treasurers, is that mine has been the only case in which the courts have held the treasurer personally liable for profits made by banks. The rule thus originated in my case, will not, in my opinion, because of its manifest injustice, ever be applied again.

"Nobility's Money.
"This sum of $650,000 is not being 'paid back' into the state treasury, it has never been in the state treasury and it never belonged to the state; none of it has ever been received by me as interest on public funds.

"Although the burden of this payment has fallen on me, I realize it could not have been met had it not been for the loyal, consistent support given to me by those favored and honest, efficient administration of state affairs; and I wish, also, at this time to thank the thousands who by voluntary contributions have aided in lightening the burden and in making possible this payment.

"LEN SMALL,
"Governor of Illinois."

ABLE TO LAND SAFELY AFTER SENDING S. O. S.Plane Demolished as It Lights in Tree on Molokai Island

Washington.—A "friendly warning" to future trans-oceanic flyers to exercise the greatest care against giving erroneous information when they are in distress was given today by Secretary Wilbur. "This is a serious matter," he said, commenting upon the distress call sent out yesterday by Ernest Smith and Emory Bronte, trans-Pacific flyers.

Honolulu, Hawaii, July 16.—(AP)—Having completed their uncertain flight to Hawaii by deliberately plunging into a tree on the island of Molokai, Ernest L. Smith and Emory B. Bronte explained as they rested here today why their radio was silent five hours after they sent out S. O. S. calls and why they continued without informing rescue ships. When still 500 miles from land.

Homing Pigeons on Plane Lost in Fog
Which it Mastered

San Francisco, July 16.—(AP)—That the monoplane City of Oakland found its way through fog so thick and confusing that even homing pigeons became lost in it was indicated today after two birds released by Smith and Bronte 300 miles off San Francisco failed to return.

Although it was still uncertain whether the birds were lost at sea, their failure to come back after more than 24 hours was taken to mean that man's mechanical bird may be more sure of its bearings in flight than the natural variety.

Bronte said the failure of their gas pump led them to believe their fuel was running low and it caused the plane to lose so much altitude that their antenna struck the sea and was torn away.

Resuscitated Pump.
The decrease in altitude resuscitated the pump and they shot up again and headed for land without knowing how long they would last, without knowing whether their calls had been heard and uncertain of their bearings.

Navy flyers announced they had salvaged the motor and instruments from the wrecked plane and had found the gasoline tanks dry. Smith and Bronte, the first civilians to fly from California to Hawaii, won a battle with unfavorable weather and perverse luck.

Whole Flight in Fog.
From the time they left the golden gate at 11:35 a. m. Thursday, until they were near their destination, they saw neither land nor sea, due to fog.

The climax came about 5:15 a. m. Honolulu time when sent out their first S. O. S. Three steamers rushed to their aid. Less than 30 minutes later, they sent out a new call for help. Soon the steamer Wilhelmina wireless that the plane had landed at sea and that the ship supposedly was about 90 miles from it.

Then there was a long silence until word of their forced landing on Molokai at 9:45 a. m. was flashed in to Honolulu. They were brought from the leper island in Army planes.

Plane Demolished.
The little monoplane City of Oakland was virtually demolished. It was in the air 25 hours and 36 minutes and traveled about 2,340 miles. Smith hopes to salvage the engine, but no more.

After landing, the flyers wireless Captain L. H. Smith at Wheeler field. But Smith was absent and the message lay unread for nearly two hours while the search continued.

Although the plane's receiver broke down shortly after the start and despite fog, Bronte pointed the way unerringly, guiding only by dead reckoning.

Neither Slept Any.

The flyers declared they had

SAPIRO AND
FORD AGREE
TO END BOUTChicago Attorney is Willing to Take Retraction

Chicago, July 16.—(AP)—Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 suit against Henry Ford was settled today, Mr. Sapiro announced.

The suit was settled on the basis of a new statement, which Mr. Sapiro announced had been issued by Mr. Ford in addition of the recent apology for anti-Jewish statements appearing in Ford's publication the Dearborn Independent.

Sapiro sued Ford for libel as a result of some of the articles alleging Sapiro was engaged in co-operative marketing as part of a Jewish conspiracy to obtain control of American agriculture. No money settlement was involved, Sapiro said.

Detroit, July 16.—(AP)—Retraction of all personal charges against Aaron Sapiro and an indorsement of co-operative marketing are included in the terms of the settlement of the Ford-Sapiro libel suit, according to W. H. Gallagher, of Detroit, chief of counsel for Mr. Sapiro.

Gallagher said that the settlement as to costs was "a personal matter between the parties." While the precise terms were not announced, it was stated by former Congressman Martin C. Anson, of New York, and J. Kestman, who acted for Ford, that "Sapiro made no demand for any compensation for any damages, in view of the retraction."

"To Start All Over."
"I have suffered a very great loss personally," said Sapiro. "I still have my training in law, however, and I am going to start all over again and rebuild."

"I am glad that I have helped a great big man get right and that I have helped the Jewish people set themselves properly before the world. I also am gratified that I have helped co-operative marketing to get general support and indorsement from the leaders of thought in the United States."

"Therefore, I am entirely satisfied."

Read Not In On It.
Negotiations were carried on at Detroit by Clifford Langley, general counsel for the Ford interests, and E. J. Davis, for Ford, and by W. H. Gallagher for Sapiro.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, chief of counsel for Ford did not appear publicly in the negotiations.

The articles appeared under the name of Harry Dunn, who was identified as Robert Morgan, of California. At Kansas City, Reed said he had no comment to make.

Stephenson Closes Up
On Further Expose Now

Indianapolis, July 16.—(AP)—An investigation into charges of political corruption in Indiana by Prosecutor W. H. Remy, received an unexpected setback today when it was learned that D. C. Stephenson, life prisoner, had announced that he would make no further documentary disclosures.

Alleged documentary evidence already released has involved Governor Ed Jackson and other public officials. The reason for Stephenson's action, his attorney said, was because Stephenson had gained the impression that it was believed he was making an effort to exert an influence over the state supreme court in his appeals.

CONFESSES TO DRIVING HIS SHIP IN RAIDSays He Got $1000 to Aid From Mayor of West City, Ill.

Waterloo, Iowa, July 16.—(AP)—Elmer Kane, 26, local aviator, was under arrest here today in connection with the bombing of the Birger roadhouse at Marion, Ill., last November 12. Police said he asserted Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, Ill., had paid him $1,000 and gave him an automobile.

On the night before the bombing Kane said he was flying from Benton to Sparta. Landing at Benton he had a minor accident and, while repairing it, three men, whom he later learned to be members of the Shelton gang, offered him the job of bombing the roadhouse. After making repairs, he accompanied the three men to a stone house in West City, where a number of men present included Shelton and Mayor Adams.

He remained that night at the home of Gus Adams, the story continues.

Fired Into House.

The confession continued: "While I was asleep, members of the Birger family came along and fired at the house with a machine gun. I counted 42 machine gun bullets through the walls of my room. On the following morning, I went to the home of Joe Adams to see about the $1,000 and the automobile.

"Bernie and Carl Shelton were there. Shortly after my arrival, federal officials arrested Bernie and Carl Shelton for complicity in the Collinsville mail robbery.

"After they left, Joe Adams gave me $1,000 cash. I later got the automobile from a man unknown to me."

Gangster Dropped Bombs.

"After receiving the money, I went to where the airplane was parked. I found a members of the Shelton gang with the plane. He had the bombs loaded in the plane. I drove the plane over the Birger roadhouse and he dropped the bombs. We flew to Duquoin, where I let him out.

"I then flew to Bursville, where the automobile was awaiting."

The confession was signed by Kane. Kane is being held on a charge of conspiracy to murder for authorities in Williamson county, Illinois. He has been managing an air field here for several months. The automobile to which he referred was a stolen one and led to his arrest. Kane's home is at Morrison, Ill., police said.

FIRED ON BOMBER

Benton, Ill., July 16.—(AP)—The attempted bombing of "Shady Rest," the Birger roadhouse last fall, added another novel weapon used in gang wars between Birger and Shelton gunmen.

Flying low over the roadhouse, an aviator dropped a bomb which failed to explode. Seven or eight Birger gangsters began firing at the plane as it dropped two more bombs. One failed to explode. The others exploded in a woods 100 yards away. No one was injured.

The gunfire apparently did not find its mark.

STORY IS DENIED.

Benton, Ill., July 16.—(AP)—Gus Adams, a brother of Joe Adams, slain mayor of West City, denied today that he knew Elmer Kane, who was arrested at Waterloo, and signed a statement that Mayor Adams paid him $1,000 and gave him an automobile for bombing the Birger roadhouse last November 12.

Gus Adams, at whose home Kane declared he stayed over night, said he had never heard of Kane before and said he knew nothing about the bombing of the roadhouse. He admitted, however, that Carl and Bernie Shelton, rival gang leaders, were arrested at his brother's house the day of the bombing and declared that Birger gangsters the day before had rigged the mayor's house with machine gun bullets.

ULTIMATUM BY ITALY TO AUSTRIA REPORTED TODAY

CONFESES TO DRIVING HIS SHIP IN RAID

Birger's attorneys in his trial for the Adams murder, said Kane probably would be used as a witness for the defense, if he were willing to testify and his testimony would fit in with the defense. He said, however, this had not been fully decided.

State's Attorney Roy C. Martin said the aviator's confession did not surprise him, as he had expected some move of the sort, but asserted he had enough evidence to convict Birger and his co-defendants and the confession would make no difference in his conduct of the case.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Report Fine Sale of Chautauqua Tickets

Splendid satisfaction has been heard on all sides from those who have compared the 1927 Chautauqua Program with previous ones. The ticket committee is grateful for the interest expressed by long-time chautauqua supporters. The canvass of the city is not yet fully complete, and until it is, the tickets will not be placed in the four business houses. This year's feature of having the season-tickets exchanged with in the home adds to their desirability along with the sixty percent saving they represent over the single admission plan.

Another decided advance which will be welcomed by all, is the decision to do away with the automobile ticket and permit all car-drivers to take their machines into the grounds without additional charge.

DANCE AT TWIN CITY PAVILION
Wednesday Night, July 20th
Music by FRIVOLITY FIVE of the Orpheum Vaudeville Circuit
Admission per couple, $1.50 Spectators, 25c

THE FRIVOLITY FIVE—The band that will be remembered for their two visits here last season—are to be back at Twin-City Pavilion on Wednesday night, July 20th. This band has a reputation of having played every large city in the United States and Canada on their vaudeville tours of the past few seasons. Having added a new man, the six-piece combination ranks above any of its size by comparison.

Music is the foundation of the dance and the Frivolity Five play music—and offer entertainment as you like it.

"Con" the critic on "Variety" in New York had this to say of the boys: "The Frivolity Five" are a real troupe of entertainers and while they should remain in vaudeville indefinitely they are a great asset to the entertainment end of any night club, resort, hotel or ball room. A real band—playing real music.

Use of Troops to Enforce Dictum is Threatened

London, Eng., July 16—(AP)—An unconfirmed dispatch from Innsbruck received by the Exchange Telegraph from Berlin, says that what was described as an ultimatum has been sent by Italy to Austria stating that unless Italian troops were allowed to traverse Austria to night, the Italian rail staff and troops would force them through.

The dispatch added that Italy was said to be hastening thousands of troops to a spot near the frontier ostensibly for maneuvers.

(No confirmation regarding the Innsbruck dispatch had been received by The Associated Press this afternoon.)

OLD MASTERS

Blessings on thee, little man,
Barfoot boy, with cheeks of tan!
With thy turned-up pantaloons,
And thy merry whistled tunes;
With thy red lip, redder still,
Kissed by strawberries on the hill;
With the sunshine on thy face,
Through thy torn brim's jaunty
grace;

From my heart I give thee joy—
I was once a barfoot boy!
Prince thou art—the grown-up man,
Only is republican.

Let the million-dollar ride!
Barfoot, trudging at his side,
Thou hast more than he can buy
In the reach of ear or eye—
Outward sunshine, inward joy:
Blessings on thee, barfoot boy!

—John Greenleaf Whittier: The Barfoot Boy.

WEST BROOKLYN NEWS

A number of our people motored to Dixon Tuesday morning where they paid their last respects to Mrs. Joseph E. Henry by attending her funeral. The solemn requiem mass was celebrated at St. Patrick's church at 9:30 with the local pastor, Father Quinn, acting as celebrant. The pall bearers were chosen from her Godchildren and were as follows: Joseph Chaon of Rock Island, Gustie Gehant, Anthony Gehant, Alex Jean-blanc, Oliver Gehant and Henry W. Gehant, all of West Brooklyn.

This marks the passing of another of our respected citizens who pioneered this community in its early life and whose existence will soon be a memory in the minds of the elder folks. Mrs. Henry had reached the age of 75 and had been very poorly since the tragic death of her husband over a year ago. Prior to moving to Dixon, the couple had retired from their Bradford township farm home and settled here to spend their remaining days in comfort. But upon the return of a son from the west, they moved to Dixon. She leaves three daughters and one son, one sister and three brothers beside a host of friends to mourn her.

The county highway department has had two caterpillar tractors at work upon the Chicago road the past two weeks getting it in shape before graveling it eastward to meet the present strip of gravel. This will afford our neighboring villages of Compton and Paw Paw an outlet to the county seat.

Patrick and Les Fane were down from Dixon Wednesday and called at the Albert Gehant home.

Mrs. Susan Butler and son Austin were here from Bradford Tuesday calling upon friends.

William Barnickel drove to Paw Paw Thursday where he caught for the team from that city.

Corn shelling seems to be on in full swing and our farmers are all taking advantage of the 90c market lest perhaps it breaks with the prospects of the new crop getting better each day.

Chris Henkel started his two weeks vacation from his duties at Meyer's store Monday. They are enjoying the time at the homes of their parents at Mendota and Harmon while Miss Thais Meyer is taking his place at the store.

Adolph Chaon shelled and delivered his corn to market Wednesday. E. A. Purdy was here from Amboy Wednesday calling on business friends. Mr. Purdy has severed his connection with the Amboy monument works and has gone into business for himself.

Mrs. Andrew Gehant boasts of having made a gallon of ice cream last Wednesday evening after the hail storm had passed and supplied her with enough ice about the house-yard to perform the feat.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Neighbour left to return home after a week's visit here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Derr. While here their son Lambert fell through a broken window and almost severed his ear.

Kingdom-Mt. Union Aid So. Met in Ashton

The Kingdom Mt. Union Aid Society met Wednesday, July 13, with Mrs. Charles Hanson at her home northeast of Ashton. Thirty-eight members and friends partook of the bountiful picnic dinner at the noon hour. Mrs. Hanson serving chicken. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Hintz, at which time it was decided to hold an ice cream social at the home of Mrs. Lee Hill on Wednesday evening, July 20. Two new members were taken into the society. After the business meeting a program was given consisting of duets and readings which were very much enjoyed. After the social hour, which passed all too quickly, the guests departed for their homes thanking Mrs. Hanson for the pleasant day spent and voting her an ideal hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Verner were here from Bradford Sunday and called on friends and former neighbors.

Mrs. Eugene Vincent offered a hemorrhage at the nose Sunday afternoon and owing to her advanced age of 85 years was in a very weakened condition and her children were summoned to her bedside. However, she is recovering nicely and seems to be gradually getting back her strength.

Two sisters from The Poor Clare seminary at Rockford were here Thursday and spent the day gathering alms with which to erect a perpetual shrine.

Mr. and Mrs. William Biggart of Rockford, James Biggart of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burley of Compton were all at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Biggart for guests at dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Florian Walter motored to Aurora Sunday and spent the day at the home of their parents. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McCrea, Miss Nellie McCrea returned with them for a week's visit.

Julius Bernardin has been in a critical condition at his home for the past few days with enlargement of the heart and while all medical aid possible is being given him, recovery seems doubtful. A trained nurse from Dixon is caring for him.

Mr. and Mrs. John Foley were here from Amboy Sunday and spent the day at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Meister.

Mr. and Mrs. William Aughenbaugh drove to La Salle Friday and spent the day shopping.

The ladies of the domestic science club and their families will hold a picnic at the Amboy park on next Sunday, July 17, where a good time is anticipated by those fortunate enough to be guests.

Our coal dealers were fortunate in securing several carloads of coal the past week which found willing customers because of the impending coal strike.

George Comingore was at Compton Wednesday and secured a residence for the coming year. George will drive back and forth each day to care for his blacksmith work and it is to be regretted that there are not enough houses in town that our people are required to reside elsewhere. In several instances there are already two families living in one house now.

Another interesting game of base ball was staged at the George Zinke farm Sunday afternoon when the Meridian team drove over and suffered defeat at the hands of the local Suckers by a score of 5 to 2. Barnickel and Walter were the battery for the locals and Erbes and Betz composed the battery for the visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bernardin returned home from the city Thursday evening after a few days business, shopping for the furniture store. Their daughters, Mrs. Christy Dinger was here from Sterling and cared for the store during their absence.

F. W. Meyer has decided to keep the store open each night during the threshing season.

CIVIC ACHIEVEMENTS

BY DON E. MOWRY
Secretary, American Community Advertising Association

As a means of giving a city a national reputation, the advantage of an annual community holiday has been realized by few American cities. The Mardi Gras of New Orleans is the perfect example of this sort of carnival, but not all cities have the traditional background that New Orleans has.

San Jose, Calif., has achieved marked success with its "Fiesta de las Rosas," however, and it offers an excellent example for other cities. Two hundred thousand visitors are now brought to San Jose by this annual carnival.

A worship of beauty for beauty's sake was the motive in the minds of the public spirited individuals who conceived and actively promoted the event. A planting day resulted in thousands of rose bushes being planted in over 60 schoolyards, numerous home gardens, lots and service stations. When the month of May came there had been sufficient publicity and selling of the idea of the Fiesta to put the mammoth project over with the result that the rose show, the coronation, the float parade, pageants and other features were repeated this year with the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of San Jose, then officially designated Pueblo de San Jose de Guadalupe—the latter being the name of the stream near which the Pueblo was located.

Romance building for a city, and selling this romance to the people, has a fascination that more than keeps pace with the educational and commercial values which usually result.

The public's general appreciation of this rose carnival has caused those who sponsored it to plan for a greater and a finer celebration in future years.

A BRIDGE TO ISLAND PARK.

The Telegraph submits to the city administration that a very fitting successor to the other splendid improvements of the past few years would be a bridge connecting Island Park with the mainland, thereby making this beautiful 54-acre city park accessible to the public. This wonderfully wooded island, with its attractive lagoons, fine spots for bathing beaches, etc., is finer than manufactured parks that other cities have spent millions of dollars to build. It has been leased to the city for a 99-year period, and undoubtedly the owners, the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., would be glad to co-operate in making the park secure for the public for all time if the city wished to make any expensive development there.

The island will never be useful or valuable to the city as a park until a bridge is built. The park board is making the only possible effort to make it available to the public by operating a ferry, but while at present only a small percentage of our population has ever even been on the island, if a bridge permitted them to drive to the spot it would rival Lowell Park in popularity.

Parks are not an extravagant luxury. They are a good paying investment, not only because of the attraction they hold for visitors from the surrounding country, but because of the pleasure and recreation they afford for our own people. Dixon has learned the value of Lowell Park and now we should capitalize on Island Park and let Dixon's fame for its pleasure giving playgrounds spread even farther.

ZONE THE CITY.

Voluntary comments that have come to us and inquiries we have made convince us that a city zoning ordinance would meet with popular approval in Dixon. Zoning is a sensible provision for the future, although its benefits may be realized sooner than we think.

Industrial plants are necessary and valuable to the city, but the noise, smoke, etc., that accompany them are a detriment to nearby property and there is no reason why they cannot be located in parts of the city where such damage is of the least consequence.

AMERICA BECOMES "VERBOTEN" LAND.

The American correspondent of a great Berlin newspaper has been having some fun at our expense, his contribution being headed by the well-known German word—"Verboten."

He begins by saying that though much water has flowed under the mill in recent years, the ordinary American cartoonist still thinks of the German as a shaven-headed, fat-tummed, horn-glassed individual wearing a funny Alpine hat, caressing a huge pipe with one hand and a mighty stein of beer with the other. Furthermore, he says we still think of all Germans being ruled by that strong military word—"Verboten"—"Prohibited."

The correspondent then comes back at us right snappily and says that when it comes to "Verboten" signs, we take the bun. He points out that in many American cities nowadays it is "verboten" to cross the streets except at certain places, and even there one must wait until the policeman give the signal. He notes that smoking in the underground and in street cars is "verboten." Expecting in railway stations is "verboten." The use of auto horns in front of hospitals and nursing homes is "verboten." In many states he says the governors and mayors have dug up old blue laws under which such things as selling soda water, supplying autos with gasoline, playing athletic games or holding orchestra concerts on Sundays are "verboten."

But, he says, the biggest of all "Verbots" is our prohibition law which seeks to prohibit and is resisted in the big cities by thousands of unwilling people. If all these things were done in Germany, he sapiently observes, Americans would say:

"What can you expect from these goose-stepping Germans? They are still militarized."

He concludes with the statement that it would not surprise him to look up and see Bartholdi's famous statue—"Liberty Enlightening the World"—bearing a mighty panel on which was inscribed one word: "Verboten!"

Well, you can't expect warm days in winter, can you?

A delegation of women called on President Coolidge to ask for rights. Doubtless the president didn't refuse 'em.

The girls used to apply irons to shirt fronts. Now they use them on the links.

John D. Rockefeller was 88 the other day. Now if we can only find out when Chauncey Depew and Thomas Edison hold theirs.

The apple crop forecast is excellent. Maybe the doctors had better put off their vacations until winter.

Charles A. Lindbergh—the very man to take a girl for a buggy ride along a country road some Sunday afternoon.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"Well, this is great," wee Carpy cried. "To think that we would ever ride a very classy flying horse. It sure's a big surprise. I'm sorry that we had to leave that little princess, but, why grieve? I'll bet that she can find us all again, if she just tries."

And, in the meantime, on they flew, up where the sky was very blue. The queerest thing about the horse was wings upon his sides. The Tinies shortly got the knack of sitting straddle, on its back and, all in all, they looked just like most anyone who rides.

"Just think," said Clowny, "when he stops, we'll be where they make chocolate drops. I'll bet that I could eat a pound, and eat them very quick." Then Scouty laughed and snapped reply, "Well, we'll find that out by and by. But, if you eat that many I am sure 'twill make you sick."

A bird flew 'round about the crowd. The flying horse neighed right out loud. It quickly scared the bird away, and scared the Tinies, too. Said Clowny, "Gee, what made him cough? He shook so much, I near fell off. He might be more considerate. 'Twas a foolish thing to do."

The horse flew on till afternoon. Said Scouty, "We will be there soon." Just then the horse began to change his pace a little bit. He slowly circled 'round and 'round and then he dropped down toward the ground. "Oh, look," said one, "There's Candy Land. We're heading right for it." And, sure enough, that's what it was. "The bunch was sure of it because they saw some colored candy sticks. They all began to cheer. They waited for the horse to light, and when he did each Tinymite slipped to the ground and Copsy said, "Hurrah! At last we're here."

(The Tinymites see the Chocolate Soldiers on parade in the next story).

SAINT and SINNER

When Bob Hathaway returned from work that evening he was greeted by the strong odor of burning food and the piercing wail of an infant undoubtedly in pain. For the first time since their marriage Faith did not come running to welcome him, although he called twice, in a forcedly cheerful voice. He looked ghostly tired, done up with the heat and worry, when he followed the sound of the baby's crying and pushing open the door to his and Faith's room.

"Oh, it's you, dear," Faith looked up at him from over the baby's head which she was pressing against her cheek. Her face was white and drawn, her eyes wild with anxiety. "I thought it might be Cherry. Oh, I'm so worried!" she moaned, as the baby's screams grew more shrill and loud. "Something's the matter with her, Bob. She's been crying like this for nearly an hour, and I've burnt the string beans and I spilled the bowl of gelatin pudding on the floor—and everything's wrong!" she ended in a sob of despair.

"Where is Cherry?" Bob asked in an even, almost expressionless voice. "She went to see Churchill," Faith explained with nervous haste. "Chris Wiley is going to file a counter-suit for divorce, demanding custody of the baby. Of course Cherry is going to instruct Churchill to fight. She thought there was no time to be lost."

"I see," Bob said dully, his shoulders drooping lower than ever. "Give me the baby," he went on in the same expressionless voice. "Or shall I see about dinner while you take care of Cherry's child for her?"

"Bob!" Faith could not restrain the cry. Then, without another word, but with her eyes great dark pools of tragedy, she laid the baby in his arms and hurried blindly out of the room toward the kitchen.

As she worked fumblingly to bring chaos out of the dinner preparations the tears ran steadily down her white cheeks. "He doesn't love me any more," she told herself dreadingly. "I've killed his love—if he ever really loved me and not Cherry—by bringing the family here to live off him."

Then her heart smote her for her disloyalty. "No, he isn't selfish," she protested passionately. "But no man could stay romantically in love under the circumstances. And he's jealous of the baby. But I've got to take care of her. Cherry can't—but, oh, Bob! I love you so, Bob!"

She was whipping cream for a raspberry shortcake, the tears still flowing steadily down her cheeks, when Bob came, tiptoeing noiselessly into the room. His arms were about her, his lips burrowing into the hollow of her neck, before she was aware of his presence. With a great sob she turned and crouched against him, her fingers clutching his arms convulsively, as if they could not be jettisoned if he was really there. "Sh-h!" he warned her, in a husky, tender whisper. "The midget's asleep. We mustn't wake her."

"What in the world did you do to her?" Faith marvelled, her eyes shining into his.

"I didn't give her an anesthetic, if that's what you mean," Bob laughed under his breath. "I fixed her a wee dose of peppermint in warm water, and she's gone off to sleep like a lamb. Awfully cute kid, isn't she?"
"Awfully!" Faith's voice trembled but her lips were smiling bravely. "You do love the baby, don't you, darling? You wouldn't let Chris Wiley take it away from us?"

"Don't be an idiot!" he chided her softly, his fingers stroking her tear-flushed cheeks. "I'll manage the expense somehow, but for a minute I was floored. Everything seemed all askew—and I was hungry," he added boyishly. "But—I love you honey. Don't you dare look tragic another minute."

TOMORROW: Cherry springs a sensation.

CHAPTER I

Fabien Ready to Become a Priest
It was a glorious May morning filled with great promise of happiness and love!

The Chevalier Fabien Des Grioux, a romantically poetic youth, talked quietly with some fellow graduate students at the White Horse Inn, at Amiens, while waiting for the Paris diligence to carry them on to St. Sulpice to complete their training for the priesthood.

Fabien's parents belonged to one of the first families of Picardy and he gallantly reflected the fact that he was a gentleman of the highest type. He was a great favorite with his student associates and the inhabitants of the town. His life had been so well regulated and studious that his masters had pointed to him as a model of conduct for other scholars. Not that Fabien made any sacrifices or efforts to acquire this reputation, but a naturally tranquil disposition and a love for study had made him apply his time to work and duty. He had an inborn dislike for vice that was accepted as positive proof of virtue.

Fabien had earned his title, of Chevalier, by being decorated with the cross and when the Bishop of the Diocese proposed that upon graduation he enter the church, Fabien accepted the honor as one entirely to his liking.

Presently a lay brother rode up to the inn and, leaving his mount outside the gate, began searching for Fabien among the people at the little iron tables in the yard. He was greatly relieved to learn from one of the students that the youth he sought was in the tavern. The kindly old man's mission was important and his face lighted up

The fragrant pink blossoms from the flowering trees fluttered against the windows and mingled with the dust as the horses plodded on toward the inn.
Spring seemed to feel that she had a rival inside the great coach.
It was true. Nature never made a more beautiful creation than Ma-non Lescout. Her face was fair—the kind that haunted, and moved men's souls. Once a man saw her she lived always in his heart. She was truly feminine, yet so deliciously beautiful that she seemed unreal.

As the great bells in the Chapel tower made themselves heard above the rumble of the diligence, Manon suddenly stopped stroking the fluffy white kitten she held in her lap and a shadow fell across her face.

Her elder brother, Andre Les-caut, resident in the gay uniform of the Guards, watched her narrowly from his sprawled out position on the other side of the diligence.

"What's the trouble, little sister? Are you already turning up your pretty nose at the thought of convent life?" Lescout inquired quizzically.

"No, no, brother dear," Manon hastened to correct him, at the same time trying to control her trembling lips. "My only thought is to do as you wish and not worry you—because you are all I have."
Nevertheless, at the prospect of lonely convent life, Manon buried her face in the great pink bow on her kitten's neck so that her brother, and perhaps the other occupants of the diligence, would not see the tears that came in spite of her efforts to keep them back.

Lescout shrugged his shoulders with great sympathy and love when he saw Fabien talking with Jean Tiberge, a loyal friend and fellow student—one need never worry about the company that Fabien found congenial!

"My son," said the lay brother, taking a little medal from his belt and quietly presenting it to Fabien. "Here is a medal for protection against worldly evil—the Bishop bade me give it to you before you leave us to complete your training."

Fabien bowed in reverential thanks over the lay brother's hand as he accepted the holy token. A divinely spiritual expression spread over his face. He could not refrain from thinking how little he needed such a charm. Worldly pleasures and appetites could never tempt him from his studies and calling! And those who knew him were just as sure of this as Fabien himself.

"Ah! Fabien, I am delighted," broke in Tiberge, putting his arm about his friend's shoulder. "You have earned that reward in all fairness. None of us can equal your brilliance and unselfish devotion."

"I deserve no credit—I have simply found my calling and every-thing else follows along naturally." "Perhaps that is true," agreed Tiberge. "It is quite characteristic that you take no credit for anything you do."

A beautiful smile lighted up Fabien's face as he heard his friend's compliment.

"You know, Tiberge, my greatest regret at leaving here is that you are not ready to depart at the same time. It is difficult to leave a loyal friend with whom one has grown up. I shall never forget you, and your thousand good qualities. We shall meet again, later on when we become—"

The remainder of Fabien's sentence was left unfinished when the students in the courtyard loudly announced that the diligence was appearing down the road.

The soft green leaves danced gracefully on their swaying branches and gently brushed against the dusty diligence as it wound along the narrow road through the sunshine.

Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is chapter 55 of the series of articles written by an ex-soldier who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXXXV

It is possible that there may have been some funnier outfits in the grand guerre but Ambulance Company No. 339 of the 310th Sanitary Train of the 85th Division, must have at least come close to winning the ripe olives. This was an enlisted outfit (all brave, fearless boys who refused to wait for the draft—collected in 1917 and shipped to France in August, 1918).

It was scheduled to take part in the Metz drive and the members, equipped with hatchets and iodine swabs, were all set for the great fray when the armistice caught them in Bois l' Eveque.

Explorers.

Socially, this outfit was supreme. In spite of a 9 o'clock closing order, no worthwhile place remained undiscovered. In Cosmesur-Loire, in Pouilly, and later on in Charnes-la-Cote and down in the LeMans area, the riots were perfect. The officers—all medecoes—were agreeable, being snuff-up soldiers, and things were done.

Along in March, 1919, the 27 regulation ambulances were received, a trifle late for duty, but nevertheless, handy. And the gang, in which there were many great boys, continued in an even stronger tone.

Stories of this outfit were innumerable but the best, perhaps which illustrates the true character, concerned the morning in April, 1919 when the boys arrived in Brest. It so happened that they came in on the day Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, dropped over for a visit.

The company was marching up the hill toward Pontanezen, slogging along in route step laden with the trophies of the chase when a flock of official blue cars with many gold stars, whizzed by. Suddenly, one stopped.

Hello! What's This?

An officer jumped out—probably a colonel, or maybe a corporal. Addressing the lieutenant in charge he demanded, angrily:

"And what the h— kind of an outfit do you call this?"

At the time the inquiring officer pointed to a private in one of the squads. And, believe it or not, that private had a sword buckled to his belt, a souvenir he had picked up on one of his raids.

The lieutenant in charge stuttered an explanation, or tried to, rather, but the irate officer cut him short.

"March 'em at attention," he yelled, "and tell that private to throw that sword in the creek."

The orders were executed. And the private, who could see no reason why he shouldn't sport a sword along with the hatchet he had carried through the war, went on kitchen police for two weeks before the outfit, after a daily bath at the Pontanezen delouser, drove home in some fringed-topped surries and was demobilized.
